MOST HOLY BODY AND BLOOD OF CHRIST

On the first day of Unleavened Bread, when the Passover lamb is sacrificed, his disciples said to him, 'Where do you want us to go and make the preparations for you to eat the Passover?' So he sent two of his disciples, saying to them, 'Go into the city, and a man carrying a jar of water will meet you; follow him, and wherever he enters, say to the owner of the house, "The Teacher asks, Where is my guest room where I may eat the Passover with my disciples?" He will show you a large room upstairs, furnished and ready. Make preparations for us there.' So the disciples set out and went to the city, and found everything as he had told them; and they prepared the Passover meal.

While they were eating, he took a loaf of bread, and after blessing it he broke it, gave it to them, and said, 'Take; this is my body.' Then he took a cup, and after giving thanks he gave it to them, and all of them drank from it. He said to them, 'This is my blood of the covenant, which is poured out for many. Truly I tell you, I will never again drink of the fruit of the vine until that day when I drink it new in the kingdom of God.'

When they had sung the hymn, they went out to the Mount of Olives.

CATHOLIC CHURCH

My Dear Sisters & Brothers in Christ,

On this Solemnity of the Body and Blood of Christ (Corpus Christi) Weekend, the Church draws attention to the connection between Christ's sacrifice and the Eucharistic sacrifice. While every celebration of the Eucharist is a memorial of Christ's sacrifice, every time we celebrate the Eucharist, we remember the love of God for us manifested in the Passion, death, and Resurrection of Jesus the Christ – and the beauty of that Last Supper which ties it all together. There can be no Eucharist if there is no sacrifice.

When Mark wrote his Gospel, the community was a mix of Jewish and Gentile members. Thus, the narrative includes some traditions of Jewish rituals and some Christian adaptation of the original Jewish rites. Examples of this are, "The Feast of the Unleavened Bread," and the "Passover Lamb." The words and actions of Jesus within the celebration of the Passover meal show the transition to a new covenant. This new covenant is the sacrifice of Himself for love of humanity. His blood, shed for many, points to the new community that will be born out of His sacrifice.

Even from the moment of the Last Supper, Jesus intended the Eucharist to be related to self-giving. He illustrated this with the washing of the feet of the Apostles. We cannot therefore separate the Eucharist from self-offering. There can be no Eucharist if there is no victim.

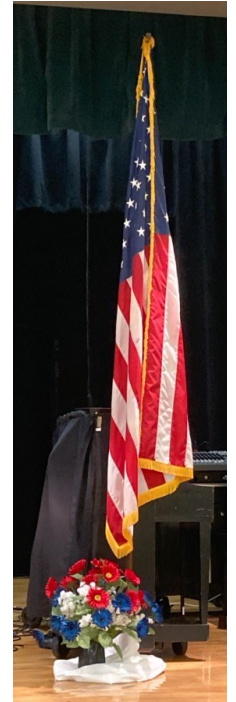

The purpose of the celebration today, the Solemnity of the Body and Blood of Christ, is to remind us all of the importance and joy at receiving the Eucharist. We are reminded of Who it is we are receiving and what state of mind (and heart) that we are in when we receive it. The original celebration of the Body of Christ was begun in the thirteenth century promoted by one of our spiritual ancestors named Saint Juliana of Liege, a visionary and an Augustinian nun. Soon after this, Pope Urban IV asked the great theologian, Saint Thomas Aquinas, to prepare a Mass to celebrate this new feast, which he did.

Every time we receive Holy Communion, we are recommitting ourselves to being active members of the community that spreads the Kingdom of God through sacrificial love. The Eucharist is the Body of Christ, the real presence of the Lord. This real presence of the Lord is the reason why we always try to spend some time in silent prayer after we receive. The Eucharist, a word that means thanksgiving, is the way that we thank God for the life we have received, and the saved community of which we are a part of. We thank God in the Eucharist for giving us His power to make His presence real in the world.

With life's many difficulties, the Eucharist gives us the sustenance to better face these daily problems. Happy Corpus Christi!

Peace, Prayers & All Good Things, Fr. Charles
