TWENTY-EIGHTH SUNDAY IN ORDINARY TIME

And as he was setting out on his journey, a man ran up and knelt before him and asked him, "Good Teacher, what must I do to inherit eternal life?" And Jesus said to him, "Why do you call me good? No one is good except God alone. You know the commandments: 'Do not murder, Do not commit adultery, Do not steal, Do not bear false witness, Do not defraud, Honor your father and mother.'" And he said to him, "Teacher, all these I have kept from my youth." Then Jesus looked at him with love and said, "You lack one thing: go, sell all that you have and give to the poor, and you will have treasure in heaven; then come and follow me." Disheartened by the saying, he went away sorrowful, for he had great possessions. And Jesus looked around and said to his disciples, "How difficult it will be for those who have wealth to enter the kingdom of God!" And the disciples were amazed at his words. But Jesus said to them again, "Children, how difficult it is to enter the kingdom of God! It is easier for a camel to go through the eye of a needle than for a rich person to enter the kingdom of God." And they were exceedingly astonished, and said to him, "Then who can be saved?" Jesus looked at them and said, "With man it is impossible, but not with God. For all things are possible with God." Peter began to say to him, "See, we have left everything and followed you." Jesus said, "Truly, I say to you, there is no one who has left house or brothers or sisters or mother or father or children or lands, for my sake and for the gospel, who will not receive a hundredfold now in this time, houses and brothers and sisters and mothers and children and lands, with persecutions, and in the age to come eternal life. Mark 10: 17-30

Diocese of Orlando Mission Office

Diocese of San Juan de la Maguana

A Future Beyond Imagination

DOMINICAN REPUBLIC | "Education does not change the world. Education changes people so they may change the world," said Brazilian educator Paulo Freire. The quote is a favorite of Superintendent of Catholic Schools, Henry Fortier, because it represents what the mission office has accomplished over the past 20 plus years in Las Lomas, Dominican Republic. Through its educational programs, a new generation of young people is transforming the mountain towns into places of learning, economic growth, and deeper faith.

Education as the Foundation The Diocese of Orlando began working in its Sister Diocese of San Juan de la Maguana in La Cucarita in 1997.

Ursuline Sister Bernadette "Bernie" Mackay began by teaching them about nutrition. As parents noticed "their four-year-olds were healthy and full of energy, they wanted something more for them," she said. "At that time, playing in the mud outside their home was all that was available to them until the age of seven, when they could be admitted to government school." Missioners were already teaching the adults to read. José Alfredo Matias's mother, Marlin, was among them. She eventually became a teacher herself.

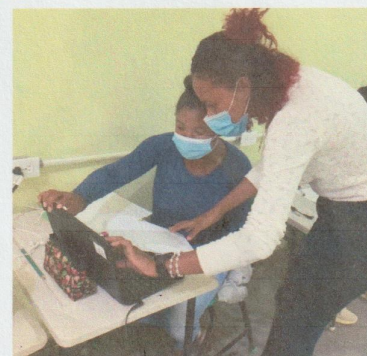

José Alfredo was four years old when he began attending the small mission school of San Pablo. His teachers were newly literate parents. At the time they were only at a fifth grade reading level, but it was enough to get the children started. Eventually the mission schools grew with the children—St. Maximilian Kolbe Middle School in Los Frios and later Nuestra Señora de Las Lomas residential and educational program in Azua.

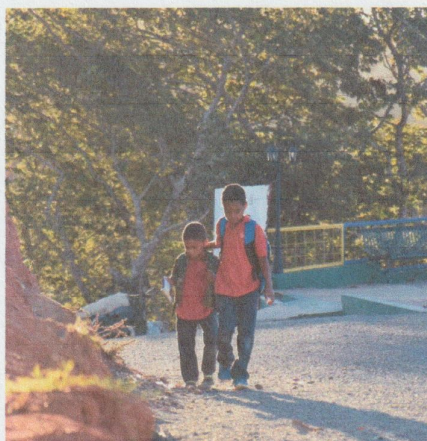

As more students attended secondary school, space became an issue. About that time, Superintendent Fortier arrived in the diocese. He and Sister Mackay thought students could be further educated at Diocese of Orlando Catholic schools. "Throughout my career, I've always felt when it was the right thing to do," Fortier said. "When I didn't overthink it; when I didn't get in the way of it by analyzing the daylights out of it; that's when the beauty unfolded."

José Alfredo attended Bishop Moore Catholic High School in Orlando and graduated in 2019. He remembers not liking school at first. It was not until fourth grade that he developed a passion for education and math, in particular. "I love math because of its exactness. In the real world, everything is related to mathematics, even if people don't realize it," he said. Now he teaches physics and math in Azua, while he works on his degree in systems engineering.

Building for the Future "It's almost impossible to describe" what the mission has done for the region, he noted. "Before the mission came here to Los Frios, life was hard. We didn't have an education. The houses were very bad. Every time the rains would come, everything inside of the house would be wet. The mission decided to build houses for the people of this community. My family took advantage of it." He acknowledges the mission forever changed lives in the mountains and his future will be very different because of it.

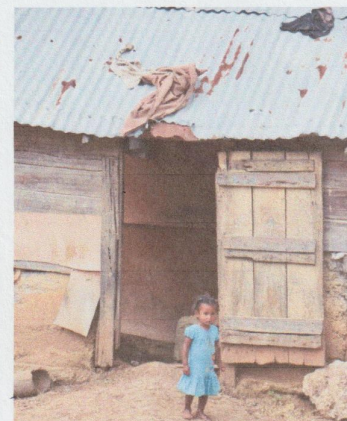

"I see myself prepared as a good professional. I also see our community changing," he says. He recalls Father Fred Ruse's birth certificate program, giving mountain residents a legal identity requiring them to be registered and counted. It afforded improvements to the area like roads and electricity.

"I think we will advance further in education, economy, and technology because people are recognizing their abilities. In the past, it was just agriculture," he added. "I want to be a part of that change. Maybe I can build a company and employ others from my community. I think that would be a good way to help them."

Next Generation of Leaders José Alfredo is one of many giving back to the community. Scarlyn De Los Santos attended Father Lopez Catholic High School in Daytona Beach and recently finished her Bachelor of Science in Biology at St. Thomas Aquinas University in Miami.

The medical student sees Las Lomas residents becoming more "self-sufficient". Teaching in Azua while attending medical school online, Scarlyn recalls the Italian adage, "Give a man a fish, and you feed him for a day. Teach a man to fish, and you feed him for a lifetime." She says, "That is what the mission has done for us here. They've taught us how to fish." Her goal is to return to her community with her medical degree and possibly work at the area's small clinic, "expanding it, making sure we have materials, doctors, people who are prepared to take care of the people when they get sick."

This dovetails well with the new leadership team made up of graduates who want to secure the necessary materials and tools needed for the region to thrive. "Because of this (education) program we have the same opportunities as the people who grow up in the city... That gives us such a fighting chance; such a chance for growth." She envisions each member contributing in his/her own field. Luis José Aybar, another Bishop Moore graduate, is also on the leadership team. He is currently heading up projects in the region – among them home construction and an aqueduct. He says he sees a brighter future for his generation. "I see my purpose here on earth—making a difference. More than joy, there is pride knowing that, through the mission, the work I am doing is changing the lives of people," he said. "It is a radical change, to see how a person who lives in a deteriorated, poor home, can be in a better-quality home with better hygiene within two years."

He added, "I see God in all of this from the beginning. Without His plan, the mission would not have come here... Thanks to God the lives of people in Las Lomas has changed." José Alfredo agrees. "Spiritually, the mission basically constructed the church in our community. It has always tried to incorporate the faith in all we do and put God first. They've guided us and are an example of what God did more than 2,000 years ago. God is first in my life. Without God's support nothing is possible."

Expanding Horizons, Rooted in Faith As these students go forth, they embrace a legacy Sister Mackay had only partially anticipated. "Teaching kids only makes sense in the context of expanding horizons," she said. "Only a new vision and a new approach could prepare the children and their families to think outside of the box." The mission schools became the vehicles for that change. "I am just listening, learning, seeking wisdom and trying to give a faithful response to each fresh invitation with still another faithful and creative yes," she said. "Being able to read is a door open to endless possibilities... The poor and our kids in these remote villages are equally gifted as city kids, they just need someone to love them enough to dream beyond the ordinary, the mundane and the status quo."

In July, Fortier met with the Diocese of San Juan de la Maguana's new Bishop Tomás Alejo Concepción. His priority is to build a Catholic University in the region. Fortier feels "it's the Holy Spirit at work." Several on the leadership team have already expressed an interest to work there as professors. Fortier believes the university will help "retain their youth and draw industry to that region."

For Fortier, the mission experience has been "one of the most profound experiences of the presence of God." Tearfully reflecting on the people of Las Lomas he said, "The brokenness of their lives, because of the economic situation and all their hardness, didn't break them. It textured them to be the beautiful people that they are. For these young people, the beautiful people they are becoming." By Glenda Meekins of the Florida Catholic, August 3, 2021

Deaconate Discernment Nights

The Diocese of Orlando has 250 permanent deacons and another 51 in formation. Diaconate Formation is a comprehensive Ministry formation process involving the four pillars of: Human, Spiritual, Pastoral, and Intellectual Formation. This 6-year Formation process prepares the future ordained Permanent Deacon for his lifelong Vocation and Ministry of: Liturgy, Word, and Charity. The Office of the Permanent Diaconate in the Diocese of Orlando is calling on its Church Communities to surface and bring forth reputable men - servants in the vineyard who are filled with the Holy Spirit - to discern a call to the Permanent Diaconate. Men seeking to discern this call are encouraged to first have an investigative inquiry and conversation with their pastor, followed by attending a Diaconate Discernment Night. Choose one of the six Discernment Sessions which will be held at Catholic Churches throughout the Diocese in September and October for the convenience of all.

PUBLIC SQUARE ROSARY CRUSADE

The world is at a crossroad. God is more offended than ever as people ignore Our Lady's maternal request to "stop offending God." We must listen to Our Lady's request and stop sinning if we hope to enjoy God's blessings and to avert His wrath. He will hear us, if we pray through the intercession of His Blessed Mother. That's why we're doing the 2021 Public Square Rosary Crusade.

In The Secret of the Rosary, Saint Louis Marie Grignon de Montfort said: "Public prayer is far more powerful than private prayer to appease the anger of God and call down His mercy, and Holy Mother Church, guided by the Holy Spirit, has always advocated public prayer in times of public tragedy and suffering."
